DETROIT (AP) — A Michigan state police trooper and three Negro youths testified Monday that men in blue uniforms lined people up against a wall in a midtown motel where three Negro youths were found slain during last month's riot.

The testimony came in the first day of preliminary examination of two white Detroit policemen accused of the first-degree murder of two of the youths.

Trooper John M. Fonger said a number of persons were forced against the wall and "told to pray" by men wearing light blue shirts, dark blue trousers but no badges. The uniforms described are similar to Detroit police uniforms.

Patrolman Ronald August is accused of shooting Aubrey Polard, 19, and Patrolman Robert Paille is charged with the slaying of Fred Temple, 18. The death of the third youth, Carl Cooper, 17, is still under investigation.

Fonger, sent to Detroit from his normal assignment at Houghton, 200 miles north of the city, told of being sent to the Algiers Motel because of reported sniper fire in the vicinity.

He said he observed no sniping but heard shots "possibly coming from" an annex at the rear of the motel. The three bodies were found in the annex.

Fonger testified he saw two bodies upon entering the building. When he saw the people lined up in the hallway, Fonger said he went outside to get his immediate superior because he felt "the situation was out of hand."

Fonger said he did not see any shots fired, but testified he found a spent shotgun shell on the floor of the room where one of the bodies was found.

Another witness, Michael Clark, 19, a Negro, identified Paille and August as two of the men present in the motel. Clark admitted under cross-examination that he had been unable to identify August at a police lineup and that the first time he identified him was in the courtroom Monday.

Clark did identify Paille at the lineup.

Eisenhower Stays Home First Day

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP) — Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower stayed home today — his first day back from the hospital in Washington.

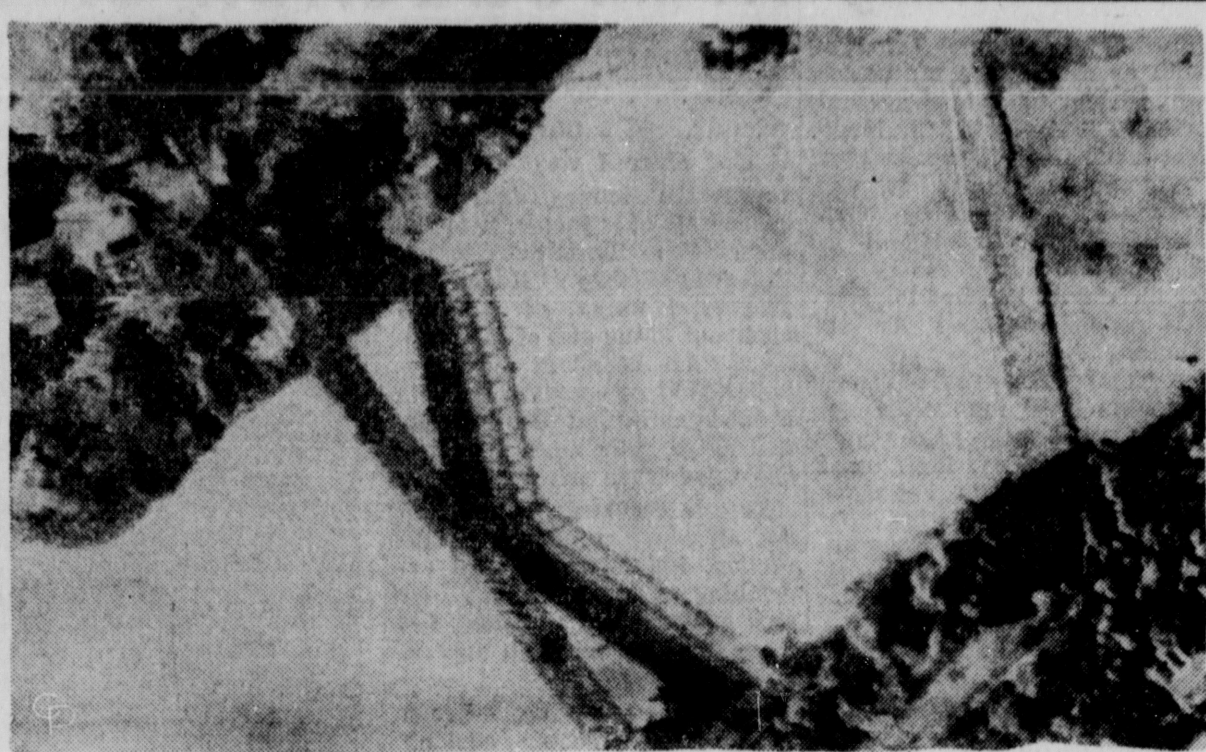

The former president returned to his farm Monday night after treatment at Walter Reed Hospital for a minor recurrence of gastroenteritis.

A spokesman at his office said the general's personal secretary was at the farm today helping the 76-year-old Eisenhower catch up with matters that arose during his 10-day absence. The spokesman said he is expected in the office Wednesday.

Body Identified As Crash Victim

ASHTABULA, Ohio (AP) — A body recovered from Lake Erie near North Kingsville Sunday has been identified as that of one of the occupants of a plane that crashed last December.

Authorities said Monday night that the body was identified as that of Anthony F. Farinacci, 32, of Madison, pilot of the single engine plane that disappeared Dec. 19 with four persons aboard. One body is still missing.

Civil Rights Bill Favored by House

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House, fresh from pushing through legislation aimed at preventing riots and punishing some riot leaders, now appears poised to move toward protection of Negroes' civil rights.

A civil rights measure, part of the rights bill which last year passed the House but died in the Senate, comes up in the House today with strong bipartisan support. Sponsors predicted passage by late in the day.

Major controversy may center on a states rights amendment to be offered by Rep. Basil Whitener, D-N.C. It would specify that nothing in the bill would preempt state laws, so long as the state laws do not conflict with federal law.

The bill provides federal criminal penalties of up to life imprisonment for persons convicted of interfering with citizens exercising specified actions protected by federal law.

Antiriot legislation, attached last year by the House to this part of the civil rights bill, already has been passed by the House this year. And further antiriot provisions were added last week when the House rewrote President Johnson's anticrime bill.

Members of the House Judiciary Committee said enactment of these measures make unnecessary addition of further antiriot provisions to the new bill, which faces an uncertain future in the Senate if passed by the House.

The bill is intended to strengthen the government's ability to meet civil rights violence in such areas as voting, public accommodations, public education, public services, employment, jury service, use of common carriers and participation in federally assisted programs.

Grosvenor Galleries Put Naked Truth on Display

LONDON (AP) — A bevy of 138 nude paintings went on display today in London's Grosvenor Galleries.

"It's a very, very rare thing to see such a big exhibition of nudes," said a spokesman for the galleries. "Actually, none of us remembers such a big nude show before."

Why so many nude paintings? "Some years back we held a small show of nudes," explained the spokesman. "It was a great success, so we decided a larger show of nudes would be a greater success."

The pictures reveal the female human form in a wide variety of poses.

Here are but a few: "Reclining nude, seated nude, crouching nude, nude with knees bent, nude reclining on back, nude with hand mirror, nude combing hair, nude kneeling, nude with distaff, nude with raised foot, draped nude, nude with hands behind back, seated nude with crossed legs, seated nude on couch and reclining nude with blue shawl."

They Won't Care for Her Poem, Either

CHICAGO (AP) — Today was Picasso day in Chicago.

Mayor Richard J. Daley made the designation in honor of Pablo Picasso, who gave to the city the design for a five-story sculpture for the plaza in front of the new civic center.

Even before the unveiling in ceremonies today, the work was the center of controversy.

Art lovers termed it another masterpiece from the hands of the 85-year-old artist, long considered the leader of the avant garde of the art world.

Others labeled the 160-ton, 50-foot abstraction in rusty steel a $300,000 piece of junk.

Gwendolyn Brooks, Pulitzer Prize-winning poet, wrote poem to commemorate the occasion in which she takes note of the controversy. The poem begins:

"Does man love art? Man visits art, but squirms.

"Art hurts. Art urges Voyages—

"And it is easier to stay at home,

"The nice beer ready..." As with so much of Picasso's work, it is "what is it?" that has stirred up speculation and controversy—and ever anger.

The sculpture has been likened to a woman's head, the head of a long-eared dog, a child's ski slide, a Trojan dove, an ape and a baboon. Usually it is referred to as Chicago's Picasso.

The artist presented it as a gift to the people of the city. The $300,000 cost of fabricating and in talling the sculpture was subscribed by charitable foundations.

Picasso is not expected to attend the unveiling.

Scientists Announce New Virus Drug

WASHINGTON (AP) — Scientists for a drug firm believe they have found a new way to prevent viral infection which also could be used to fight any types of cancer found to be of viral origin.

Five researchers for Merck Sharp & Dohme said Monday they discovered how to "stimulate the human body to produce a natural germ-fighting chemical called interferon. This is a protein produced by the body but sometimes not enough is produced to overcome virus attacks.

A Merck spokesman said if it's established that some types of cancer are of viral origin, the new discovery could have significant implications.

The researchers have used three interferon-inducing substances in animal tests and say the results were promising. They said the medication may be tried on humans.

Interferon slows the spread of infection by preventing viral reproduction in cells and works against several types of viruses. Consequently, if the research is fully successful, the use of a single interferon-inducing medication could replace the variety of vaccinations now given to prevent several diseases.

The research team, headed by Dr. Maurice R. Hilleman, plans to publish three reports on its work in the Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences.

Hilleman, working for the Walter Reed Army Institute of Research during the 1950s, was one of those alerting the nation in advance of the first Asian flu outbreak to hit the United States. The others on his team are George P. Lamson and Drs. Alfred A. Tytell, A. Kirk Field and Marjorie Nemes.

Situation In China Grows Worse

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) — The whole of the China mainland is in turmoil, Nationalist China's foremost authority on Chinese Communist affairs asserted in a report published today.

Chen Chiang-chung said sentiment against communism and Chairman Mao Tse-tung of the Communist party was spreading throughout the mainland.

Chen is director of the Sixth (Mainland Affairs) Section of the Kuomintang, President Chiang Kai-shek's ruling party in Nationalist China.

Chen said the situation was the worst since the Chinese Communist came into power on the mainland in 1949.

1. The people of the mainland were rising against them.

2. Communist political party and military cadres were turning against Mao.

3. More and more people on the mainland were hoping that Chiang and his Chinese Nationalists would stage a comeback.

Chen said the Wuhan industrial complex in central China, the second largest steel-making center on the mainland, was no longer producing steel. He said all plants there of the Hua Chung Central China Steel Corp. had ceased work.

He also reported that the operations of more than 2,000 mining projects in the mainland had come to a halt, "causing immeasurable losses to the Communist regime."

Fairbanks Reels As Flood Strikes

Dirksen Defends Bombing Decision

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen joins former President Dwight D. Eisenhower in defending President Johnson's decision to bomb North Vietnam targets only 10 miles from Red China.

Eisenhower, commander of allied military forces in Europe in World War II, and Dirksen said separately but in almost identical words that military targets were involved and the air attacks should be continued.

The White House, meanwhile, declined any comment on the latest U.S. air assaults.

Eisenhower and Dirksen said they do not believe such near-border raids risk bringing Red China into the conflict—a contention made in the Senate Monday by Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield and echoed by Republican Sens. Charles H. Percy of Illinois and John Sherman Cooper of Kentucky. In the face of this split of Republican opinion, Eisenhower told a news conference as he left Walter Reed Army Hospital after a 10-day stay, he hopes the conduct of the war does not become an issue in next year's presidential campaign. He said he doesn't want to be among those who might make it one.

"What do politicians know about conducting a war?" he asked. "We must use force and get done with it."

Eisenhower said he believes the war should be pursued, "with the idea of winning it." He added: "You should get everything you can, and use it as fast as you can, and get it over with as quickly as possible because war is a nasty thing."

Dirksen said in an interview he is satisfied legitimate military targets were hit in the raids to within 10 miles of the Red Chinese border. He said he is certain American fliers have been instructed thoroughly in avoiding Red Chinese air space.

"I think it's necessary and I don't think it's dangerous," he said. "I haven't heard of any protest from China."

Mansfield called the bombing raids "a very dangerous extension of the war." He said they "bring us that much closer to the brink of a possible confrontation with China."

Endorsing this contention,

2 Plead Guilty, Receive Sentences

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A Columbus man pleaded guilty Monday in Common Pleas Court to second-degree murder and a woman entered the same plea to a manslaughter charge in a separate slaying.

Sammie Gladden, 36, pleaded guilty in the shooting of Mrs. Roberta Walker, 25, last Nov. 26. Gladden was sentenced to life in the Ohio Penitentiary by Judge Fred J. Shoemaker.

Geraldine Faye Atwood, 38, pleaded guilty to first-degree manslaughter in the Feb. 16 slaying of Earl Wolford McCoy, 59. Judge Leonard J. Stern sentenced her to one to 20 years in the Marysville Reformatory.

Cooper called for a move toward de-escalation and new efforts to get peace negotiations.

Percy said in a statement that by approving the air attacks, Johnson "not only has escalated the war but he has risked a widening of the war which could result in tens of thousands of additional casualties" by inviting Communist Chinese intervention.

High Official Gave Out Tip On Herbert

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A Democratic Party official accused a "high-placed official of the Rhodes administration" Tuesday of tipping off the press to gifts that financed State Treasurer John D. Herbert on Ohio trade missions to Europe and the Far East.

The charge was made by Eugene P. O'Grady, executive director of the Ohio Democratic Executive Committee, in a statement calling for a legislative investigation "into the operations of the executive departments under the Rhodes administration."

His request stemmed from recent disclosures by Herbert that he accepted money from bankers to help pay his expenses on the trade missions.

"While Mr. Herbert was singled out, through a convenient leak to the press by a highly-placed official of the Rhodes administration," O'Grady's statement said, "we deserve to know how many other state officials have been receiving money, trips and other emoluments from the interests with whom they deal."

Asked by newsmen to identify the "highly-placed official," O'Grady said, "I don't know that."

O'Grady said Herbert should make a "full public disclosure of all contributions" he received, and that "nothing less than a thorough investigation by an objective legislative committee will answer to the public's crying need to know" which public officials "are accepting gifts, how much and where it's coming from."

Atty. Gen. William G. Saxbe said Monday that he was told by "someone connected with the Far East trade mission" that "arrangements might be made to pay his expenses. Saxbe said he turned down the offer and passed up the trip after deciding he did not want to pay his own way.

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Hamilton County Grand Jury will consider a first degree manslaughter charge against George C. Walker, 21, of Xenia in connection with the death of Donna R. Butler, 20, of Hallandale, Fla.

Miss Butler's body was found in weeds near a National Guard armory here Friday night.

The young woman, an outstanding vocalist, had completed her summer studies at Central State University and was en route home when she was slain.

Alaskan City Damage To Run Into Millions

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP) — Flood waters surged through this interior Alaska city of 30,000 today, forcing evacuation of most of the downtown area and causing heavy damage.

Mayor H.A. Boucher reported the situation to Gov. Walter Hickel from the only telephone line still open.

"At this point," he said early today, "there isn't a home in the city not flooded, and 80 per cent of our businesses have suffered major damage. Obviously the damage will run well into the millions. It is the worst flood in anyone's memory here."

Many persons were reported stranded, but there were no reports of injuries.

St. Joseph's Hospital had been evacuated and at least 62 patients moved to Basset Army Hospital at nearby Ft. Wainwright. Those evacuated from their private homes were taken to schools in higher areas of the city.

The city lies on a generally flat plain with the Chena River, one of the three rain-swollen rivers in the area, looping through the center.

Boucher estimated the water on the Chena was 5 to 6 feet above flood stage at 3 a.m. Alaska Standard Time and still rising as rain continued to saturate the area.

He said there was an average of 1 to 5 feet of water throughout the downtown area.

The mayor expressed grave concern about the possibility of fire. He said all police cars and fire engines were flooded and only a few Army half-track vehicles were able to move about.

The Fairbanks Airport, he said, was open but the road to the airport was flooded.

Gov. Hickel planned to fly from Juneau to Fairbanks later today to view the damage and meet with the mayor and military officials.

The governor said state and federal agencies were preparing to send in food and clothing to Fairbanks and Nenana, 50 miles southwest of here. He declared both communities disaster areas Monday.

The situation at Nenana was unknown early today, Boucher said, since all communications there had failed.

The A-67 Centennial Exposition here, located on the banks of the Chena, began flooding Monday night. Workers fought to control the waters spreading through the grounds of the financially troubled centennial.

GOP Press Hard for Budget Cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — Members of the House Ways and Means Committee told administration officials today they still have not made a case for the 10 per cent income tax surcharge President Johnson seeks.

During their second day of testimony before the tax-writing committee, Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler, Budget Director Charles L. Schultz and Chairman Gardner Ackley of the Council of Economic Advisers were pressed for an explanation that would make sense to the voters.

"We're going to have to satisfy the people on two counts," Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., said. He said taxpayers will have to be convinced that they are better off now than they were five years ago and that even after the surcharge is added they will pay less tax than they had before the 1964 tax reduction.

Ullman said that, taking into account increases in state and local taxes, he is not sure this would be the case.

"My judgment is that a tax increase is justified, but I believe I am in a minority on this committee," Ullman added.

A tough fight for the bill was Rep. James A. Burke, D-Mass., who said, "I doubt that any members of this committee are committed to it and many of us have many reservations about it."

Republicans planned to press Johnson's first-string fiscal team about the extent of administration budget-cutting Congress can expect if it approves the surcharge.

Rep. John W. Byrnes of Wisconsin, the senior Republican on the committee, laid the groundwork Monday for this line of inquiry from the minority members.

There was heavy emphasis Monday on economy from the Democratic side, too. Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., asked Budget Director Charles L. Schultz: "Is there any real possibility that, if taxes are increased, we can expect the rate of spending not to be increased?"

Schultz replied he couldn't answer for expenditures linked to the Vietnam fighting, but "as far as civilian expenditures are concerned there is a good possibility of getting even below the figures in the January budget—in fact we are aiming at this."

Schultz reminded the congressmen, however, that economic efforts depend in part on their action. He said he understands there is serious discussion in Congress of a government employees' pay raise bill that would cost $1 billion more than the 4.5 per cent increase the President has approved.

Schultz, along with Treasury Secretary Henry H. Fowler and Chairman Gardner Ackley of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, was recalled for a second day's appearance before the tax-writing committee.

They opened the administration's case for Johnson's 10 per cent surcharge on individual and corporate income taxes intended, with related tax changes, to raise $7.4 billion against a deficit that otherwise might run to $29 billion.

Byrnes said in an interview he has a number of additional questions to ask, some aimed at administration statements that officials hope to cut, hold down and postpone spending by about as much as the tax increase.

Dead at 87

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Actress Jane Darwell, who often told friends her life and work had been completely without hardship, died as she was about to embark on a new film role.

The 87-year-old actress spoke of her upcoming role in "Seven from San Antonio" at a party last Friday. She described it as: "A lusty old gal with lots of spirit—something I can sink my teeth into—and I still have my own teeth!"

Miss Darwell died Sunday at the Motion Picture Country home. She had suffered a light stroke last Memorial Day and a heart attack last week.

Miss Darwell was born Patti Woodard in Palmyra, Mo. She was the daughter of W.R. Woodard, wealthy contractor and president of the Louisville Southern Railroad.

The researchers have used three interferon-inducing substances in animal tests and say the results were promising. They said the medication may be tried on humans.

Interferon slows the spread of infection by preventing viral reproduction in cells and works against several types of viruses. Consequently, if the research is fully successful, the use of a single interferon-inducing medication could replace the variety of vaccinations now given to prevent several diseases.

The research team, headed by Dr. Maurice R. Hilleman, plans to publish three reports on its work in the Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences. Hilleman, working for the Walter Reed Army Institute of Research during the 1950s, was one of those alerting the nation in advance of the first Asian flu outbreak to hit the United States. The others on his team are George P. Lamson and Drs. Alfred A. Tytell, A. Kirk Field and Marjorie Nemes.

Fairbanks Reels As Flood Strikes

Dirksen Defends Bombing Decision

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen joins former President Dwight D. Eisenhower in defending President Johnson's decision to bomb North Vietnam targets only 10 miles from Red China.

Eisenhower, commander of allied military forces in Europe in World War II, and Dirksen said separately but in almost identical words that military targets were involved and the air attacks should be continued.

The White House, meanwhile, declined any comment on the latest U.S. air assaults.

Eisenhower and Dirksen said they do not believe such near-border raids risk bringing Red China into the conflict—a contention made in the Senate Monday by Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield and echoed by Republican Sens. Charles H. Percy of Illinois and John Sherman Cooper of Kentucky. In the face of this split of Republican opinion, Eisenhower told a news conference as he left Walter Reed Army Hospital after a 10-day stay, he hopes the conduct of the war does not become an issue in next year's presidential campaign. He said he doesn't want to be among those who might make it one.

"What do politicians know about conducting a war?" he asked. "We must use force and get done with it."

Eisenhower said he believes the war should be pursued, "with the idea of winning it." He added: "You should get everything you can, and use it as fast as you can, and get it over with as quickly as possible because war is a nasty thing."

Dirksen said in an interview he is satisfied legitimate military targets were hit in the raids to within 10 miles of the Red Chinese border. He said he is certain American fliers have been instructed thoroughly in avoiding Red Chinese air space.

"I think it's necessary and I don't think it's dangerous," he said. "I haven't heard of any protest from China."

Mansfield called the bombing raids "a very dangerous extension of the war." He said they "bring us that much closer to the brink of a possible confrontation with China."

Endorsing this contention, Dirksen said the situation was the worst since the Chinese Communist came into power on the mainland in 1949.

1. The people of the mainland were rising against them.

2. Communist political party and military cadres were turning against Mao.

3. More and more people on the mainland were hoping that Chiang and his Chinese Nationalists would stage a comeback.

Chen said the Wuhan industrial complex in central China, the second largest steel-making center on the mainland, was no longer producing steel. He said all plants there of the Hua Chung Central China Steel Corp. had ceased work.

High Official Gave Out Tip On Herbert

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A Democratic Party official accused a "high-placed official of the Rhodes administration" Tuesday of tipping off the press to gifts that financed State Treasurer John D. Herbert on Ohio trade missions to Europe and the Far East.

The charge was made by Eugene P. O'Grady, executive director of the Ohio Democratic Executive Committee, in a statement calling for a legislative investigation "into the operations of the executive departments under the Rhodes administration."

His request stemmed from recent disclosures by Herbert that he accepted money from bankers to help pay his expenses on the trade missions.

"While Mr. Herbert was singled out, through a convenient leak to the press by a high-placed official of the Rhodes administration," O'Grady's statement said, "we deserve to know how many other state officials have been receiving money, trips and other emoluments from the interests with whom they deal."

Asked by newsmen to identify the "high-placed official," O'Grady said, "I don't know that."

O'Grady said Herbert should make a "full public disclosure of all contributions" he received, and that "nothing less than a thorough investigation by an objective legislative committee will answer to the public's crying need to know" which public officials "are accepting gifts, how much and where it's coming from."

Atty. Gen. William G. Saxbe said Monday that he was told by "someone connected with the Far East trade mission" that "arrangements might be made to pay his expenses. Saxbe said he turned down the offer and passed up the trip after deciding he did not want to pay his own way.

Alaskan City Damage To Run Into Millions

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP) — Flood waters surged through this interior Alaska city of 30,000 today, forcing evacuation of most of the downtown area and causing heavy damage.

Mayor H.A. Boucher reported the situation to Gov. Walter Hickel from the only telephone line still open.

"At this point," he said early today, "there isn't a home in the city not flooded, and 80 per cent of our businesses have suffered major damage. Obviously the damage will run well into the millions. It is the worst flood in anyone's memory here."

Many persons were reported stranded, but there were no reports of injuries.

St. Joseph's Hospital had been evacuated and at least 62 patients moved to Basset Army Hospital at nearby Ft. Wainwright. Those evacuated from their private homes were taken to schools in higher areas of the city.

The city lies on a generally flat plain with the Chena River, one of the three rain-swollen rivers in the area, looping through the center.

Boucher estimated the water on the Chena was 5 to 6 feet above flood stage at 3 a.m. Alaska Standard Time and still rising as rain continued to saturate the area.

He said there was an average of 1 to 5 feet of water throughout the downtown area.

The mayor expressed grave concern about the possibility of fire. He said all police cars and fire engines were flooded and only a few Army half-track vehicles were able to move about.

The Fairbanks Airport, he said, was open but the road to the airport was flooded.

Gov. Hickel planned to fly from Juneau to Fairbanks later today to view the damage and meet with the mayor and military officials.

The governor said state and federal agencies were preparing to send in food and clothing to Fairbanks and Nenana, 50 miles southwest of here. He declared both communities disaster areas Monday.

The situation at Nenana was unknown early today, Boucher said, since all communications there had failed.

The A-67 Centennial Exposition here, located on the banks of the Chena, began flooding Monday night. Workers fought to child," Gardner said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Health, Education and Welfare Department has set up a new post to handle birth control problems.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Quaker has ended his one-man sit-in at the Treasury Department which he began May 29 to protest the department's refusal to license shipments of medical supplies to North Vietnam and its freeze of two bank accounts the Quakers opened for Vietnam relief.

Ross Flanagan of New York said Quakers now feel they must find more direct ways of helping relieve civilian suffering which results from "the ever-increasing brutality of this war."

The Treasury says it won't license the shipment of medical supplies because the North Vietnamese refuse to permit inspection of how the supplies are used, so there's no guarantee they won't be used for military purposes.

Commissioners Hire Builder To Plan Home Renovation

Pickaway County Commissioners took the first step toward making repairs required by the state at the Children's Home.

During the Monday afternoon session of the weekly meeting of solons Wayne Hines, Lloyd Melvin and Charles Morris, J. Boyd Stout, local contractor, was employed to draw specifications and plans for the proposed renovations.

Earlier this summer, the commissioners were informed by the Child Welfare Board that if steps were not taken to comply with recommendations of state building inspectors, the home would lose its certification.

The Child Welfare Board presented several plans to commissioners, including the construction of a new home, purchase of two homes to be used as receiving centers; revamping the present home, placing all quarters for boys on one floor and all quarters for girls on the other.

COMMISSIONERS yesterday indicated they intended to repair the old structure at the least possible cost to comply with state regulations.

Although a Lancaster architect had earlier estimated the cost of repairing the building at between $85,000 and $100,000, Commissioners believe the work can be accomplished for much less.

Two Ashville Women Hurt In Car Crash

Safety Belts Installed But Not in Use, Says State Highway Patrol

Two Ashville women sustained injuries in a two-car smashup early Tuesday at the intersection of Circleville-Lockbourne and Harrisburg - Fairfield Roads three miles north of Ashville.

Taken to Mercy Hospital in Columbus and later transferred to Doctor's Hospital were Glenda B. Reinhold, 20, and Patricia Ellen Welsh, 20, both of Ashville.

The Reinhold woman had lacerations on her right leg and a possible fractured ankle. The Welsh woman had lacerations on her face and a possible punctured bladder, according to Highway Patrol officials.

The accident occurred 6:50 a.m. A car driven by Michael A. Rogers, 17, Route 1, Ashville, was westbound on Harrisburg-Fairfield Road. Rogers stopped for a stop sign at the intersection but pulled into the path of the auto driven by the Reinhold woman which was northbound on Circleville-Lockbourne Road.

ROGERS complained of minor injuries, but was not treated. Damage to both cars was extensive.

State Highway Patrol officers cited Rogers for failure to yield the right of way.

The Reinhold auto was equipped with safety belts, said the Highway Patrol. Neither of the women appeared to be using the belts at the time of the accident.

The actual construction work will be let by competitive bidding, commissioners emphasized.

In other action, the commissioners discussed with Circleville Police Chief Robert Temple and Sheriff Dwight Radcliff the present status of the jail contract between the city and county.

Temple asked that commissioners consider broadening the contract so that persons arrested by the city could be incarcerated immediately in the county jail.

Temple pointed out the move would be necessary until such a time as the city jail could be renovated.

RADCLIFF pointed out that certain modifications may have to be made to handle drunks and other difficult to manage prisoners.

Commissioners authorized the payment of $17,190.45 in bills.

Byrnes said he is not satisfied that defense spending not directly connected with the Vietnam war cannot be reduced.

He complained he has been unable to get a firm figure on the cost of sending 45,000 additional troops to Vietnam. "The President talks about $4 billion, but the Defense Department says it doesn't know," Byrnes said.

Other members of the committee, including some Democrats, indicated they will explore alternatives to the straight 10 per cent extra charge on income taxes, including the possibility of a different rate for individual and corporate taxpayers.

Another development likely to spur committee questioning was the Commerce Department's downward revision of its earlier estimate of gross national product.

In originally proposing the tax surcharge last January, Johnson said it would be needed to deflate a fast-expanding economy and stave off inflation.

But the Commerce Department said that in the second quarter the gross national product—the value of all goods and services produced in the economy—rose $8.8 billion instead of $9 billion as originally forecast.

That implied the economy is picking up steam at a slower rate than the administration has been saying it would.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up .6 at 339.3 with industrials up 2.0, rails off .5 and utilities up .2.

Dress Rehearsal Review

Fine Showing of Talent In Production of 'Picnic'

By MRS. JEANNE BACH

Oops . . . Our talents are showing, and a fine showing it is too! Since I was asked to review the Monday night dress rehearsal of "Picnic," to be presented as the initial effort of Pickaway County's Roundtown Players, I might as well go clear out to the end of the limb. As a "has been" in the newspaper field, it could have come a little hard, but this production is to charming, why use one word when two will do.

This is Pickaway County talent all the way. The sets, direction, lighting, actors — everything was created by our own and it fills a void long felt by many who enjoy all aspects of theater.

Playhouse - on - the - Green or Stadium Theater couldn't have done it better and it proves again that anything they can do, we can do at least as well. We have the talents and this group put forth the efforts. With proper public support — there could be much more to come.

The Barn at the Country Club is the setting for the performances scheduled for Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings. Air conditioned by nature, sheltered by trees and sprinkled with stars, the play and the theater are most compatible.

LIGHTING effects are most dramatic and the music and acoustics very pleasing.

Told at the leisure time pace of a soft summer's day, this romantic comedy by William Inge is capably directed by Glen Plum.

Madge Owens, played by Lois Smith, is the beauty of the family who is a million dollar dreamer in a five and ten cent store. Millie, her younger sister, portrayed by Marsha Moore, is a borderline tom boy-woman, who still uses a baseball cap as a security blanket, but will probably end up with the pot of gold. Sibling rivalry bristles all over the stage. Both are very well cast, quite believable in their portrayal and do an excellent job.

DICK Davis, cast as Alan Seymour, the son of the "rich family" in town, and his former college friend, Hal Carter (Bill Dore) are reunited in this play. Alan is the good guy who will go far in the world, but doesn't get the girl—Hal is a "thumb time" hitch hiker and rail riding Romeo who does. They both give relaxed, professional performances worthy of any stage.

Rosemary Sydney (Martha Wiggins), a school teacher just a little past the bloom, who has locked her human emotions in too small a box, finally manages to turn the key of release. Her part is beautifully presented.

Howard Bevans, played by Tom Matesky is the town's old-

Eloise's Beauty Salon, 512 S. Court St., has been completely remodeled.

GETS HER MAN — After a hilarious bickering scene, Rosemary Sydney (Martha Wiggins) gets a marriage proposal from Howard Bevans (Tom Matesky) in the romantic comedy "Picnic" to be staged Thursday, Friday and Saturday in the barn at the Pickaway Country Club. Tickets are still available for the three public performances.

er, bachelor hardware king, who is a sly old bird with the morals of a tom cat. He is funny and does a fine job with the part.

Christine Schoenwalder (Eleanor Moss) and Irma Kronkite (Carol Tinney), as two of Rosemary's anxious, over-aged "girl" friends, are so believable they remind you of people you have known.

Mrs. Flo Owens (Carol Young) and Mrs. Potts (Ruth Ann Seibel) as the mother of the girls and a neighbor carry very difficult parts beautifully. They bind the play together and give roots to the story and other characters.

Dave Schneider gives a fine performance as Bomber Gutzel, a newspaper carrier.

DON'T miss spending a delightful evening with our own Roundtown Players. Tickets are still available for all three evenings at the American Hotel.

The set constructions are truly artistic and professional. It looks so much like the yard between two Victorian vintage houses that you expect to hear the crickets chirp. And suddenly . . . when the music fades . . . you do hear them.

Working behind the scenes to contribute to this evening of fine entertainment are Mary Anne Yates, coordination; Ken and Doris Luna and Tom Shea, scenery; David Schein, Steve Sills, Lorna Poling and Bud Pike, lighting; Mike Lorentz, sound; Nancy Yates, Kathy Smith, Marilyn Orr, Caryl McCoskey, make-up and Eileen Wood, hair styles.

Today in Washington

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Health, Education and Welfare Department has set up a new post to handle birth control problems.

Secretary John W. Gardner says Katherine B. Oettinger, who has run the Children's Bureau, will be deputy assistant secretary for family planning and population. She will work to insure "the integrity of the family and the maximum opportunity for the development of each child," Gardner said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Quaker has ended his one-man sit-in at the Treasury Department which he began May 29 to protest the department's refusal to license shipments of medical supplies to North Vietnam and its freeze of two bank accounts the Quakers opened for Vietnam relief.

Ross Flanagan of New York said Quakers now feel they must find more direct ways of helping relieve civilian suffering which results from "the ever-increasing brutality of this war."

The Treasury says it won't license the shipment of medical supplies because the North Vietnamese refuse to permit inspection of how the supplies are used, so there's no guarantee they won't be used for military purposes.

Papandreou, 48, son of former Premier George Papandreou and a former American citizen, has been in Averoff jail in Athens since the April 21 military coup, awaiting trial on charges of plotting to overthrow King Constantine.

Papandreou is quoted as saying he had suffered "galloping tuberculosis" a few weeks ago but that he is much better now and has been receiving regular medical attention.

Commissioners Hire Builder To Plan Home Renovation

Pickaway County Commissioners took the first step toward making repairs required by the state at the Children's Home.

During the Monday afternoon session of the weekly meeting of solons Wayne Hines, Lloyd Melvin and Charles Morris, J. Boyd Stout, local contractor, was employed to draw specifications and plans for the proposed renovations.

Earlier this summer, the commissioners were informed by the Child Welfare Board that if steps were not taken to comply with recommendations of state building inspectors, the home would lose its certification.

The Child Welfare Board presented several plans to commissioners, including the construction of a new home, purchase of two homes to be used as receiving centers; revamping the present home, placing all quarters for boys on one floor and all quarters for girls on the other.

COMMISSIONERS yesterday indicated they intended to repair the old structure at the least possible cost to comply with state regulations.

Although a Lancaster architect had earlier estimated the cost of repairing the building at between $85,000 and $100,000, Commissioners believe the work can be accomplished for much less.

Safety Belts Installed But Not in Use, Says State Highway Patrol

Two Ashville women sustained injuries in a two-car smashup early Tuesday at the intersection of Circleville-Lockbourne and Harrisburg - Fairfield Roads three miles north of Ashville.

Taken to Mercy Hospital in Columbus and later transferred to Doctor's Hospital were Glenda B. Reinhold, 20, and Patricia Ellen Welsh, 20, both of Ashville.

The Reinhold woman had lacerations on her right leg and a possible fractured ankle. The Welsh woman had lacerations on her face and a possible punctured bladder, according to Highway Patrol officials.

The accident occurred 6:50 a.m. A car driven by Michael A. Rogers, 17, Route 1, Ashville, was westbound on Harrisburg-Fairfield Road. Rogers stopped for a stop sign at the intersection but pulled into the path of the auto driven by the Reinhold woman which was northbound on Circleville-Lockbourne Road.

ROGERS complained of minor injuries, but was not treated. Damage to both cars was extensive.

State Highway Patrol officers cited Rogers for failure to yield the right of way.

The Reinhold auto was equipped with safety belts, said the Highway Patrol. Neither of the women appeared to be using the belts at the time of the accident.

Dress Rehearsal Review

Fine Showing of Talent In Production of 'Picnic'

By MRS. JEANNE BACH

Oops . . . Our talents are showing, and a fine showing it is too! Since I was asked to review the Monday night dress rehearsal of "Picnic," to be presented as the initial effort of Pickaway County's Roundtown Players, I might as well go clear out to the end of the limb. As a "has been" in the newspaper field, it could have come a little hard, but this production is to charming, why use one word when two will do.

This is Pickaway County talent all the way. The sets, direction, lighting, actors — everything was created by our own and it fills a void long felt by many who enjoy all aspects of theater.

Playhouse - on - the - Green or Stadium Theater couldn't have done it better and it proves again that anything they can do, we can do at least as well. We have the talents and this group put forth the efforts. With proper public support — there could be much more to come.

The Barn at the Country Club is the setting for the performances scheduled for Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings. Air conditioned by nature, sheltered by trees and sprinkled with stars, the play and the theater are most compatible.

LIGHTING effects are most dramatic and the music and acoustics very pleasing.

Told at the leisure time pace of a soft summer's day, this romantic comedy by William Inge is capably directed by Glen Plum.

Madge Owens, played by Lois Smith, is the beauty of the family who is a million dollar dreamer in a five and ten cent store. Millie, her younger sister, portrayed by Marsha Moore, is a borderline tom boy-woman, who still uses a baseball cap as a security blanket, but will probably end up with the pot of gold. Sibling rivalry bristles all over the stage. Both are very well cast, quite believable in their portrayal and do an excellent job.

DICK Davis, cast as Alan Seymour, the son of the "rich family" in town, and his former college friend, Hal Carter (Bill Dore), are reunited in this play. Alan is the good guy who will go far in the world, but doesn't get the girl—Hal is a "thumb time" hitch hiker and rail riding Romeo who does. They both give relaxed, professional performances worthy of any stage.

Rosemary Sydney (Martha Wiggins), a school teacher just a little past the bloom, who has locked her human emotions in too small a box, finally manages to turn the key of release. Her part is beautifully presented.

Howard Bevans, played by Tom Matesky is the town's old er, bachelor hardware king, who is a sly old bird with the morals of a tom cat. He is funny and does a fine job with the part.

Christine Schoenwalder (Eleanor Moss) and Irma Kronkite (Carol Tinney), as two of Rosemary's anxious, over-aged "girl" friends, are so believably they remind you of people you have known.

Mrs. Flo Owens (Carol Young) and Mrs. Potts (Ruth Ann Seibel) as the mother of the girls and a neighbor carry very difficult parts beautifully. They bind the play together and give roots to the story and other characters.

Dave Schneider gives a fine performance as Bomber Gutzel, a newspaper carrier.

DON'T miss spending a delightful evening with our own Roundtown Players. Tickets are still available for all three evenings at the American Hotel.

The set constructions are truly artistic and professional. It looks so much like the yard between two Victorian vintage houses that you expect to hear the crickets chirp. And suddenly . . . when the music fades . . . you do hear them.

Working behind the scenes to contribute to this evening of fine entertainment are Mary Anne Yates, coordination; Ken and Doris Luna and Tom Shea, scenery; David Schein, Steve Sills, Lorna Poling and Bud Pike, lighting; Mike Lorentz, sound; Nancy Yates, Kathy Smith, Marilyn Orr, Caryl McCoskey, make-up and Eileen Wood, hair styles.

Jim Anderson, Gloriaa Pike

GETS HER MAN — After a hilarious bickering scene, Rosemary Sydney (Martha Wiggins) gets a marriage proposal from Howard Bevans (Tom Matesky) in the romantic comedy "Picnic" to be staged Thursday, Friday and Saturday in the barn at the Pickaway Country Club. Tickets are still available for the three public performances.

Battleship's Comeback

The Defense Department will reactivate the battleship New Jersey, a 16-inch gun monster it intends to use to pound North Vietnam next year.

In an age which has grown accustomed — indeed, almost indifferent — to massive expenditures on military hardware, the $27 million it will cost merely to take the grease off this battleship and give it an economy overhaul is surprising. In fact, just to prepare a study on whether to bring the 25-year-old veteran back into service cost $800,000.

At the end of World War II battleships passed into disfavor. The gloomy predictions of some Navy brass in the 30s that these costly monsters would be sitting ducks for aircraft seemed to have been confirmed. They had to be screened by destroyers and "coddled" by carriers and anyway firepower was now on wings.

But no weapon becomes obsolete. Under certain conditions in a war a bow and arrow would still be effective. The New Jersey will be a floating battery of awesome power. Its effective field of fire will be limited to a coastal strip about 15 miles deep. Within that area it will be able to wreak fearful havoc with its nine 16-inch guns. These are twice as big as anything presently available.

The Navy recommended recommissioning the 45,000-ton ship to cover targets now being hit by aircraft. The Navy contends the ship can do this and eliminate the risk of loss of pilots and planes.

Hundreds of planes have been shot down over the North, and more are being lost almost daily. The F-105 costs $2.5 million to manufacture, so dredging up the New Jersey could be quite a bargain.

Bewigged Dandies

It was bound to happen. The wig craze has been afflicting the ladies for several years. Now the boy friends are succumbing. The latest information from style centers is that young men are trailing their lady friends to the wig salons — and occasionally going in alone — for look-alike wig outfits.

A growing market has been developing for some time in men's fancy hair styles. Special rinses, frosts and razor cuts have been in vogue, but all dealt with the natural head topping. The unnatural variety has now caught on, and sales are booming.

One New York wig maker has sold 25,000 so far this summer to department stores from coast to coast. He is currently shipping 500 a day and has a backlog of orders. Presumably the more affluent members of the swinging set are buying several wigs of different hues (all long hair, of course) to wear as the occasion demands.

His and hers wigs do require some coordination, however. One can almost hear the wails of the damsels who have gathered her ensemble around a blond wig for an evening out only to find her escort wearing his red one.

NEW YORK (AP) — Jumping to conclusions:

Laff-A-Day

"I made it for you, dear."

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

IN THE HEART of the hardest-hearted Hannah there is an ounce or two of compassion. Consider the case of the Charleston lady who was accused of killing her husband by putting rat poison in his coffee. Thundered the District Attorney, "Didn't your conscience bother you at all when you sat there and watched your husband drink that poison?" "Not one smidgen," insisted the defendant, "but I must confess I had a slight twinge when he asked for a second cup."

A limber six-year-old was standing unwaveringly on his head when his grandmother came into the room. "Aren't you too young to be doing this?" she fretted. "Remember you're only six." "It's all right, Grammy," answered the boy. "I'm nine while I'm upside down."

THE BRIDGE OF SIGNS:

Outside a Florida real estate development: "Gets lots while you're young!"

In the window of a wallpaper store: "Shop here and hang the consequences."

In a swank hair-dressing salon: "If you look like your passport photo, you've come here just in time."

Above a stationer's display: "For the man who has everything: a calendar to remind him when the payments are due."

Speaking of Your Health

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

In some families the thermometer is a special toy that is used regularly and at the slightest provocation. The concentration on temperature can be so absorbing that some mothers are known never to let a day go by without taking their children's temperature. This is an excellent way to lay the groundwork for the adult psychoneurotic.

There is a variation of this "fever phobia." Many of my patients have said that their temperature never goes above 97 no matter how sick they are. Somehow I have never been able to win that battle even though I insist that it is impossible.

Fever is an evidence that the body is mobilizing its strength and resources to fight an infection in the body. When the body defenses are adequate fever will be present.

A real problem that presents itself to doctors is the constant presence of a low-grade fever of unknown origin. This can be perplexing and very frustrating to the patient and to the doctor who is trying to establish the cause of unexplained fever.

When the doctor is confronted with the baffling problem of long-standing fever, he applies all the skillful diagnostic tests to uncover the cause. Complete blood studies, sputum tests and stool examinations contribute information that helps in the diagnosis.

Tuberculosis, typhus fever, amebic dysentery, rheumatic fever and a host of other illnesses are ruled out by various examinations. Chronic hepatitis and infectious mononucleosis must be ruled out.

A sedimentation study of the blood and agglutination tests coupled with bacteriological tests of the blood and urine usually pinpoint the cause of the fever.

X-ray of the chest, the intestinal tract and the bones may contribute vital information about the cause of sustained fever.

Sometimes it is necessary to go to the extent of taking a biopsy of tissue and even of the bone marrow in the never-ending search for the cause of disease. Complicated X-ray studies of the blood vessels, called angiograms, and studies of the bladder and kidney are carefully performed to track down the vague causes of fever of unknown origin.

Only in this way can adequate treatment be started. Without the confirmation of the exact origin, any treatment would, at best, be guesswork.

Patients with unexplained fever are understandable impatient. They must cooperate with a doctor during this difficult period of examination if the exact diagnosis is to be arrived at.

Fever is always an excellent guide to illness and the recovery from it. When the illness is over the thermometer should be carefully placed in its carrying

The Business World

By John Cuniff

NEW YORK (AP) — This has been a rugged year for the forecasters, most of whom have been kept busy updating, correcting painfully readjusting and, in the U.S. Treasury's case, revising downward.

The errors are so widespread—and generally on the low side when measuring anticipated revenues—that mankind has a right to wonder if the electronic computer is his friend, or at least as reliable as a friend should be.

The computer, and its tendency to look unemotionally into the future, is the machine that has made us so dependent, so reliant not just on the present but on what is yet to come.

Among the recent statistical revisions are federal income tax revenue, the death rate, state lottery returns, retail sales, the stock market.

The list is literally endless, but it is most painful and treacherous when it includes forecasts of revenue much higher er than produced in reality.

New York State established a lottery this year to raise $198 million annually for schools. But revenue through July trickled in so slowly that it appears as little as $60 million will be raised.

Early this year the Johnson administration anticipated tax collections fully $7 billion higher than the rate at which they are now arriving at the Treasury.

These two examples illustrate the most common error, the same one that plagues households—the anticipation of more money than turns out to be the case.

But all the errors are not misreadings of the future. Sometimes the past is revised also.

Early this month the Commerce Department reduced its estimate of homebuilding activity during June. In fact, it lowered housing figures for the past 4½ years because they did not conform to reality.

The new figures for June show housing starts at an annual rate of 1,209,000 units instead of 1,302,000 under the original figures. The new estimates, the government said, are based on improved calculations.

Nor are all the statistics bad news.

Again looking backward, statisticians this month revised the June figures for retail sales. Counting the dollar signs again, the government lifted the June sales figure $400 million to $29.5 billion. These statistical and forecasting mistakes come at a time when computers, theoretically, have been making it much easier for man to project himself into the future.

We have been able to create a synthetic future but reality often cannot match it.

If mankind blames the computer that makes the projection then it should also remember that the computer is merely carrying out man's orders. Which makes it a pretty good friend.

DAR Assists Immigrants

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following is the second in a series of articles giving detailed accounts of local area women's clubs and organizations. The first few articles will deal with the Daughters of the American Revolution.

At the beginning of this century when immigration was at its peak, the Daughters of the American Revolution realizing that no organized effort was being made to help this horde of strangers become citizens of the United States, undertook to give the educational help so necessary to these newcomers.

The society published, and with the consent and cooperation of the United States Immigration and Naturalization Service, distributed to immigrants, free of charge, copies of the DAR Manual for Citizenship. To date, more than 9,000,000 copies of this manual have been distributed.

To further aid prospective citizens, the DAR in 1913 founded the Americanization School in Washington, D. C., the only school of its kind in the country. In 1920, it was incorporated into the school system of the District of Columbia and today has 1,500 students from 93 nations enrolled in its courses. For over 50 years this Americanization School has pioneered in helping many thousands of people to a better understanding of good citizenship and patriotism.

NFO Meets To Bolster Farm Prices

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP)—Members of the National Farmers Organization will gather here Wednesday for what they bill as a "meeting for action" to bolster farm prices.

NFO President Oren Lee Staley of Rea, Mo., said some 30,000 farmers from 28 states are expected at the meeting. He said that would be the largest farm meeting ever held.

The NFO has held several "holding actions" in recent years, in which members hold commodities off the market in an effort to force processors to sign contracts to guarantee farmers prices set by the NFO. "Good interest in this meeting has been building because of sliding farm prices," Staley said. "Grain and hog prices have been slipping and there hasn't been enough gain in milk prices."

"The meeting is where the members will make a decision on what action they want to take."

The NFO has adopted a slogan, "No Price, No Production," for the meeting. Staley said "implementation of that slogan is up to the meeting."

"The members will decide whether they want to have another holding action," he said. Staley explained that the meeting was called because, "We can't wait until our regular national convention in December to make the decision."

The World Today

By James Marlow

WASHINGTON (AP) — Those were President Johnson's golden days, 1965. This summer of 1967 is not hot for him they are the cold days, getting colder. If he pays attention to public opinion, and he does, it's enough to make him shiver.

Starting out in 1965 he had it all his own way, thanks to the 1964 elections. In Congress his Democrats swamped the Republicans, with 295 to 140 seats in the House, and 67 to 33 seats in the Senate, a two-thirds edge.

No wonder then, with these majorities and his ceaseless prodding, the Democratic-run Congress produced the most remarkable legislative year in history. And he had time for prodding in those days. The Vietnam war was in babyhood.

He had just begun the U.S. military buildup in 1965, with only 165,000 Americans there by the end of the year. He was criticized for being involved in the war at all, but his standing with the voters was high.

In the first six months of 1965, for example, when it was clear the troop buildup had begun in earnest, the Gallup poll showed public approval of the way he handled his job dropped from 71 to 64 per cent.

But by June public approval was back up to 70 percent. This couldn't last unless Congress was able to repeat its amazing performance in 1966 or unless the war somehow could be brought to a quick and victorious end. Neither happened.

Congress coasted in 1966 and there were no victories in Vietnam. The war became a nightmare. The troop buildup went on. There was more discontent at home.

This was reflected in the 1966 elections, giving back to the Republicans 48 House seats, three Senate seats. The Johnson breeze in Congress died away. He prodded less as he became more preoccupied by the war.

Congress dawdled this year, just as it did in 1966. The war criticism piled up on Johnson. The doves were still complaining. But so were the hawks now. They wanted Johnson to make the war tougher.

He began talking of a war dragging on indefinitely. The American death toll in Vietnam went up from 1,365 at the end of 1965 to over 12,500 now. And already there is a bad odor from the upcoming elections in Vietnam.

They were supposed to have been a shining symbol of how the United States, which claimed it was fighting the war to assure the South Vietnamese of self-determination, was helping the people establish a democratic society.

On top of the empty basket from Congress, the endless war, and Johnson's realization that he had to ask for a tax boost to pay for the war, he was drenched in the summer of 1967 with riots, the worst in history.

Few can doubt he wants to be re-elected in 1968 but the Gallup and Harris polls over the weekend must have chilled his blood. Both reported that now only 39 per cent of those quizzed approved the way he handles the presidency.

Perhaps a major reason for this sour public reaction is lack of forceful leadership. Johnson and the country, instead of giving a sense of movement, seem to be marking time.

One example: he was criticized for not sending U.S. troops fast enough into Detroit to crush the riot although it still is not clear whether he or Michigan's Gov. George Romney was responsible for the delay.

But Johnson was far from forceful when he went on television to explain—he did the explaining at midnight—why he sent the troops at all. And he has not been forceful about the riots since.

He set up a commission to study riot problems with instructions not to make its final report until next summer.

When Johnson was Senate majority leader he knew no one could achieve anything by giving orders to the other 99 senators. Solutions were obtained through compromises, sometimes called a consensus. In the presidency Johnson has given few examples of decisive leadership. Rather, he gives the impression of using his Senate technique of seeking consensus, or trying to determine public reaction, before moving.

Rights Commission Head Warns of 'Wrong Lessons'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chairman John A. Hannah of the U.S. Civil Rights Commission said Monday lessons learned from racial rioting "can result in corrective action not only to assure law and order but to attack the condition which underlie disorder and violence."

But he added: "The danger is that we will learn the wrong lessons from what has occurred—that our response to these outbreaks will be too narrow in scope and will serve only to divide the nation even further into opposite camps."

Hannah, president of Michigan State University, said one reaction has been that "ameliorative measures which could be construed as rewarding violence" should be rejected. Another, he said, is that riots have shown civil rights laws to be valueless.

"If we adopt these views, we will be making a tragic mistake," he told a Senate Judiciary subcommittee at a hearing on the administration's civil rights bill.

"Legislation to assure equal rights for all American is not a reward to the relatively few who participate in riots," Hannah said, "but rather an effort to redeem a pledge long overdue to more than 20 million Negro Americans."

Although Hannah was unable to be present, his statement was read for him by William L. Taylor, commission staff director.

Bernard Kawalski Faces Challenge of Cinerama

MADRID (AP)— The dark, unassuming young man rattled Spanish with fluent ease and seemed like one of the native workers on the movie set.

But he was the director, and he comes from the San Fernando Valley in California. His name: Bernard Kowalski.

The director was rehearsing a climactic scene for "East of Java" with his principal players: Maximilian Schell, Diane Baker, Rossano Brazzi, Sal Mineo and Barbara Werle. Speaking in quiet tones, he drilled them in their lines again and again until he was satisfied. Then he released them for lunch.

Bernie Kowalski sat in a corner of the set and mused about the massive change in his career as a film maker:

"Until this time I have been dealing with the small screen. Now for my first feature I've got the biggest screen of all."

A television veteran, Kowalski now faces the challenge of the limitless possibilities of Cinerama, in which "East of Java" is being filmed. Having titillated the public with everything from roller coaster rides to speed-car racing, the Cinerama people are going all-out in this one. Everything is included, from hurricanes to underwater exploration to balloon ascension, ending with the explosion of the volcano Krakatoa, right there on the big curving screen.

Lima Priest Dies Sunday

LIMA, Ohio (AI)—The Rev. Walter T. Hanley, 62, pastor of St. Charles Catholic Church, died Sunday night in the parish rectory of an apparent heart attack.

He had been instrumental in establishing the parish and its school.

Fatal Leap

CLEVELAND (AP)—A Chicago man died in St. Vincent Charity Hospital Monday night of injuries police said he suffered in a leap from the rear of a New York Central passenger train here.

He was identified as John J. Barnes, 41.

You might think that all this would overwhelm Bernie Kowalski, who trained in "Perry Mason" and "Rawhide." Not at all. "I've been in the picture business for 32 years," he reckons. "So I'm ready for anything that comes along." Bernie was born in Brownsville, Tex., a true American, being of Polish, German, French, Mexican, Indian and Jewish parentage. His father moved the family to Los Angeles and became an assistant director in the studios. Bernie started helping the family treasury at 5, as a boy actor.

After leaving Loyola University in Los Angeles, he worked in almost every studio department, later became a director during the explosion of TV series filming. He developed into a specialist in pilot films and scored an amazing 1,000 batting average in his last four: "Mission: Impossible," "Rat Patrol," "The Monroes" and next season's "N.Y.P.D."

He found that his television background proved invaluable for improvising under pressure. It also helped that he could communicate immediately with the Spanish crew; he spoke Spanish at home during his childhood.

How does he make the artistic transfer from small to big screen?

"I am treating the Cinerama screen with great respect," he remarked. "I think Frankenstein did a fine job with 'Grand Prix,' using quick cuts to heighten the drama. The tendency in Cinerama has been to employ wide-angle shots that show everybody in the scene."

"I'm not doing that. I'm cutting quickly from one shot to another so things happen. I'm also devoting much care to the characters. I think if you have a bunch of people the audience cares about, then you can build up to the big scenic effects with no difficulty."

Perennial Judges Bill Called to House Floor

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A perennial bill to increase the number of common pleas judges in Ohio was called to the floor of the Ohio House today with sponsors uncertain whether the usual fight would develop.

The omnibus measure bearing the names of 28 members of both parties would add 17 judges in a dozen counties with Cuyahoga claiming four and Franklin three.

Bills adding judgeships always stir controversy among lawmakers under back-home political pressure and such measures often are killed for lack of compromise. Bills adding judges are required by the constitution to receive two-thirds approval of each chamber.

Senators and representatives returned from weekend recess early Monday for an extended work week they hope will help clear pressing business for a 10 to 12-week recess about Aug. 25.

With a heavy round of hearings set on bills dealing with taxes, education, highway safety bank reform, and increases in unemployment and workmen's compensation payments, the lawmakers plunged into big floor calendars.

The Senate added its approval to House bills making the licensing of professional nurses in Ohio mandatory for the first time and permitting Ohioans to donate all or parts of their bodies to medical science without approval of the next-of-kin.

Representatives passed three bills affecting farmers and gave unanimous approval to companion measures designed to help poor school districts qualify for more state aid and save money on bond issues.

Sent to the Senate were proposals requiring commercial hog raisers feeding garbage to boil it for 30 minutes before feeding, raising from $2,000 to $10,000 the limit township trustees may spend for repair of town halls without voter consent, and permitting owners of farm trucks also to use them license free for campers.

Rep. Charles Fry R-9 Clark co-sponsored companion bills closing loopholes in tax laws. One would delete tax exempt property from delinquent lists now used in calculating tax duplicates at an expense to school district in state subsidies. The other would provide prompt collection of taxes for school districts and other subdivisions which issue bonds in anticipation of future tax collections.

Rep. Barry Levey R-39 Butler was listed as chief sponsor of the common pleas judges bill although the long list of co-sponsors represented every county that would be affected.

In addition to the four in Cuyahoga and three in Franklin one judge each would be added in Butler, Lorain, Lucas, Mahoning, Montgomery, Muskingum, Richland, Summit, Warren and Wayne.

In other developments, the Senate passed and sent to the House a bill assuring state racing inspectors a new minimum daily wage of $27.20 while working at tracks. Senators sent to the governor a House bill requiring funds received from correctional inmate participation as volunteers in research program be set aside for books and other educational materials.

The House passed and sent to the Senate bills giving townships the same right as counties to claim and sell abandoned vehicles and permitting joint vocational school districts to build, operate, and maintain dormitories and similar facilities.

Veteran Job Program Is Announced

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson has announced that he intends to help discharged veterans find jobs on a personalized, individually tailored program of personal contacts by representatives of the nation's 2,200 Public Employment Service offices.

Johnson said in a statement that more than 750,000 young men and women who have served their country well will be leaving the armed forces for civilian life in the next year and: "It is only right that their countries serve them as well."

Most of these returning veterans, he said, will be looking for work and "I intend to help them find it."

He said he had directed the secretary of labor, in cooperation with the secretary of defense, to extend on a nationwide basis a pilot program launched in Pennsylvania. Under this program, the federal-state Public Employment Service system is providing personalized service to help veterans increase their ability to get jobs.

Present law, Johnson said, requires the Public Employment Service to give veterans priority in helping to place them in jobs.

"I am directing," he said, "that this assistance be extended beyond the confines of the employment office, and that each and every returning veteran be personally contacted by telephone or by personal visit by a representative from one of the nation's 2,200 Employment Service offices in order to ascertain his or her particular job needs."

"Each veteran will be offered individually tailored job finding assistance, employment counseling and testing, and referral to training or any other service which will help him obtain employment promptly."

In the past year, Johnson said, the majority of the 600,000 veterans who came back to civilian life had no trouble finding work but nearly 100,000 did have difficulty.

City Fire Chief Urges Check of Heating Systems

With cold weather still months away, Fire Chief Bernard Wolfe today urged homeowners and tenants in the Circleville area to make their annual safety check of home heating appliances now.

"Competent inspection of such appliances as furnace, water heater, incinerator and room heater should not be put off," Chief Wolfe said. "Plumbers and heating contractors normally are busiest when cold weather hits, long and dangerous delays could face those who wait until later to have their equipment inspected and have necessary repairs made."

"Many home heating problems can be prevented by checking heating appliances for proper adjustment, proper ventilation, safe connections and proper operation of safety shut-off devices," he added.

Any heating appliance can get out of adjustment and should be checked annually. Vents carry away the products of combustion and therefore should be checked regularly.

Chief Wolfe suggested the following check list to assure safe, efficient operation of home heating equipment:

Be certain that the heater is vented to a good chimney. If there is a cleanout opening with cap in the chimney under the vent (stove pipe), be sure the vent is clear of debris.

Be sure that the chimney is clean. Blow smoke into the cleanout opening to make sure it is drawing.

Be sure that the vent pipe goes up, not down, from the heater to the chimney. Use a safety thimble to keep the pipe from going too far into the chimney. Seal around the pipe with cement or plaster where it enters the chimney.

Don't use a cooking range for room heating. Have a qualified person install any heating equipment or make necessary adjustments.

Perennial Judges Bill Called to House Floor

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A perennial bill to increase the number of common pleas judges in Ohio was called to the floor of the Ohio House today with sponsors uncertain whether the usual fight would develop.

The omnibus measure bearing the names of 28 members of both parties would add 17 judges in a dozen counties with Cuyahoga claiming four and Franklin three.

Bills adding judgeships always stir controversy among lawmakers under back-home political pressure and such measures often are killed for lack of compromise. Bills adding judges are required by the constitution to receive two-thirds approval of each chamber.

Senators and representatives returned from weekend recess early Monday for an extended work week they hope will help clear pressing business for a 10 to 12-week recess about Aug. 25.

With a heavy round of hearings set on bills dealing with taxes, education, highway safety bank reform, and increases in unemployment and workmen's compensation payments, the lawmakers plunged into big floor calendars.

The Senate added its approval to House bills making the licensing of professional nurses in Ohio mandatory for the first time and permitting Ohioans to donate all or parts of their bodies to medical science without approval of the next-of-kin.

Representatives passed three bills affecting farmers and gave unanimous approval to companion measures designed to help poor school districts qualify for more state aid and save money on bond issues.

Sent to the Senate were proposals requiring commercial hog raisers feeding garbage to boil it for 30 minutes before feeding, raising from $2,000 to $10,000 the limit township trustees may spend for repair of town halls without voter consent, and permitting owners of farm trucks also to use them license free for campers.

Rep. Charles Fry R-9 Clark co-sponsored companion bills closing loopholes in tax laws. One would delete tax exempt property from delinquent lists now used in calculating tax duplicates at an expense to school district in state subsidies. The other would provide prompt collection of taxes for school districts and other subdivisions which issue bonds in anticipation of future tax collections.

Rep. Barry Levey R-39 Butler was listed as chief sponsor of the common pleas judges bill although the long list of co-sponsors represented every county that would be affected.

In addition to the four in Cuyahoga and three in Franklin one judge each would be added in Butler, Lorain, Lucas, Mahoning, Montgomery, Muskingum, Richland, Summit, Warren and Wayne.

In other developments, the Senate passed and sent to the House a bill assuring state racing inspectors a new minimum daily wage of $27.20 while working at tracks. Senators sent to the governor a House bill requiring funds received from correctional inmate participation as volunteers in research program be set aside for books and other educational materials.

The House passed and sent to the Senate bills giving townships the same right as counties to claim and sell abandoned vehicles and permitting joint vocational school districts to build, operate, and maintain dormitories and similar facilities.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

Her Husband Gets the Prize

DEAR ABBY: I've read about a lot of strange characters in your column, but I think my husband takes the prize. He gets a lot of pleasure out of going around looking like a hobo. Why? Because of all the sympathy he gets from his friends who think the poor man's wife is neglecting him. I know all his tricks.

Abby, my husband is a millionaire! You heard me. He paid taxes on an income of $175,000 last year. He wears his suits for 2 months without cleaning or pressing them. He will wear a white shirt for 3 and 4 days. He buys the cheapest socks, underwear, shoes and clothing because they get to looking shabby faster. If I don't patch and mend he goes around with holes! Now, what would you do with a problem like mine?

HIS WIFE: I'd throw a butterfly net over him. And fast. Next thing you know he might think it would be nice if people felt sorry for him because he "lost" his wife. And then he might think up ways to "lose" her.

DEAR ABBY: Our son wanted to enlist in the navy, so he went down for his physical and he didn't pass it. He felt so ashamed and hurt because all his buddies made it, and he didn't. He's not going to college, so he feels sort of all alone and blue.

The problem is the people around here. They are very inquisitive. Someone is always asking him how come he's not in service. He's ashamed to tell them he couldn't pass the physical. Is there something else he can say when he's asked?

HIS MOTHER: DEAR MOTHER: He should tell them the truth. There are many reasons why a young man can be "4-F," ranging all the way from a heart murmur he didn't know he had, to a bum knee suffered in a football game.

If you son is letting something like that bother him, he has a battle at home he'd better start working on.

DEAR ABBY I am employed as a secretary in a large office. One of the senior partners is semi-retired and comes in only a few days a week for 2 or 3 hours.

Last winter he came in just before noon and asked me to type a letter for him, which I gladly did. Then out of the blue, he asked me to have lunch with him. I was surprised because none of the bosses has ever taken any of us girls to lunch. I accepted.

I don't know what I did to charm this man, but he certainly seemed to enjoy my company. Don't misunderstand me, he didn't make any out-of-the-way advances to me, he just told me about his early life, which I found fascinating. I am 29, unmarried, and he is over 65, with an invalid wife. My problem: He invites me to lunch frequently now. But he leaves envelopes with $50 and $100 bills enclosed for "extras."

Now, I know it's no financial strain on him as he is very wealthy, but I am adequately paid for any work I do at the office, and I feel guilty accepting this money. Am I taking advantage of an elderly man by accepting his gifts and giving him nothing but a smile and a pleasant lunch hour by just listening?

WONDERING: DEAR WONDERING: As long as he asks nothing, and you promise nothing, you have no reason to feel guilty. (P. S. But don't accept any more money, just in case.)

Officials Discuss Land, Water Fund Distribution

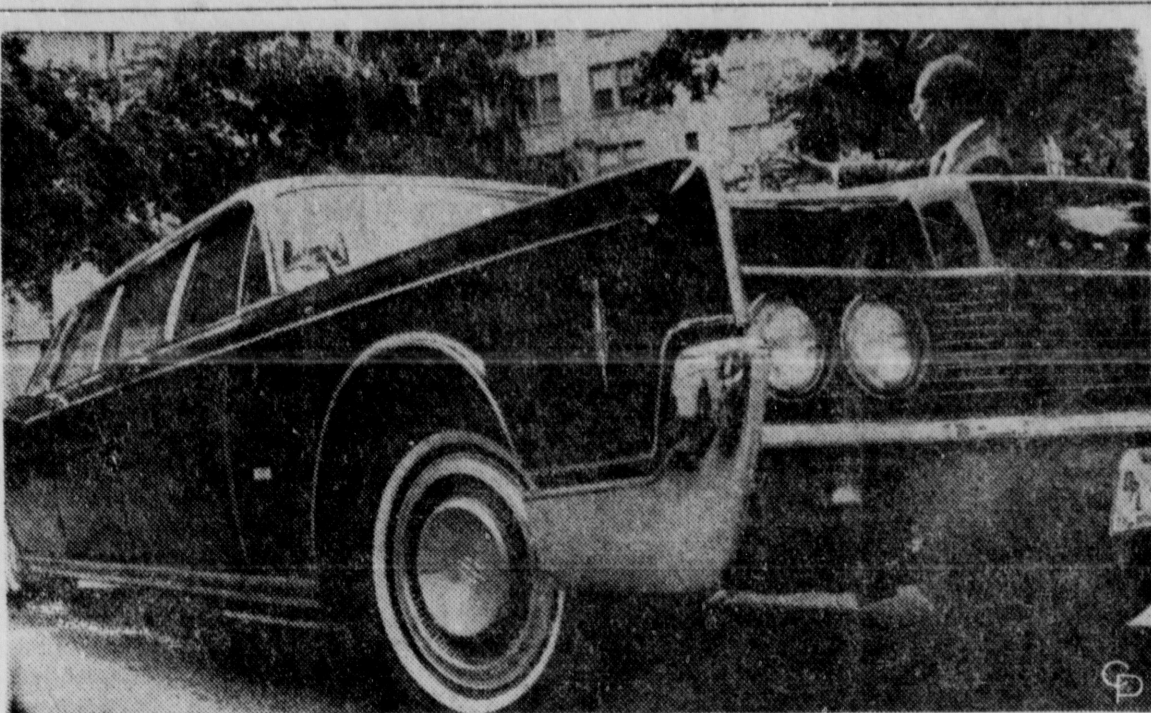

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Representatives from the Ohio Department of Natural Resources told officials of Ohio's political subdivisions today how federal land and water conservation funds will be distributed.

The officials, representing more than 2,000 cities, counties, villages and townships, were told of criteria which must be met by local projects seeking funds.

A conservation fund act, passed by Congress in 1965, allocated more than $5 million for state projects during the first two years. Under the act, local subdivisions are to begin receiving a percentage of the money this year.

The Ohio Recreation and Resources Commission recommended that local subdivisions get 40 per cent of this year's $2.2 million appropriation.

The limousine was made to order for Ghana's deposed President Kwame Nkrumah. It has such features as air conditioning; AM-FM radio; television; bar; refrigerator; telephone for talking to the driver; bulletproof glass; hidden gun compartment and retractable steps for bodyguards.

Library To Try Music Background

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (AP)—The library whisper and the quiet clasp of closing books may soon give way to the sound of soft music in a Pennsylvania State University library.

School officials are installing a sound system to pipe tape recorded music into selected areas of the undergraduate wing of Pattee Library. The system should be ready when the fall term begins next month.

The music is a selection of popular show tunes and light classics, specially scored to be unobtrusive by eliminating peaks of high or low notes. The idea is to overcome distracting noise.

Some 10,000 species of butterflies flutter throughout the United States.

Strait-Laced Ireland Becoming More Tolerant

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

DUBLIN (AP)—Ireland, long the most censored of English-speaking countries, is moving toward a liberalism that movie men never thought possible.

Sweeping changes in film morality have affected the United States and England during the past five years, and they are being felt now in Ireland.

"We are moving with the times," says an important official of Irish censorship, "but we are stopping short of pornography."

The Irish in the past have banned such a seemingly innocent film as "Forever Amber," and more recent victims have been "The L-Shaped Room," "The Girl with the Green Eyes," "Station 7 Sahara," "A Taste of Honey" and "Irma La Douce."

Observers feel that many of these films would be passed if they came up for approval today.

Such problem pictures as "The Group" and "The Servant" have been admitted to Ireland, after certain cuts were made. The Irish censor turned down "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" but his decision was reversed by the appeal board. These films are shown with admission limited to those over 18.

The Irish machinery for censorship is much like that in England, except that in Ireland it is operated by the government, not the film industry. The film censor, currently a retired doctor, functions under the minister of justice. He is charged with inspecting films to prevent: 1. indecency; 2. obscenity; 3. blasphemy; 4. anything subversive of public morality.

If film distributors dispute his findings, they can appeal to a board consisting of two judges, two clergymen (Catholic and Protestant) a trade union official, a grandmother and three others.

During 1966, however, the board reversed the censor's decisions only 11 times out of 1,047 separate films, including shorts and newsreels.

One of the things that rankles film men is the fact that once a movie is banned, it can never be submitted again. Some of the films banned 20 years ago might easily pass today. But the law doesn't provide for resubmission.

"That may soon be changed," said an official. "Recently the parliament passed a law permitting banned books—like some of Sean O'Casey, James Joyce, Frank O'Connor and Yeats—to be submitted for approval again. If that can be done for books, the law concerning films might well be altered, too."

The increased liberality of Irish censorship doesn't mean Ireland is altogether ready to accept the growing frankness of American and English films. The Catholic church retains a firm hand on matters of public morality. Nudity in films is still closely censored.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

Her Husband Gets the Prize

DEAR ABBY: I've read about a lot of strange characters in your column, but I think my husband takes the prize.

He gets a lot of pleasure out of going around looking like a hobo. Why? Because of all the sympathy he gets from his friends who think the poor man's wife is neglecting him. I know all his tricks.

Abby, my husband is a millionaire! You heard me. He paid taxes on an income of $175,000 last year. He wears his suits for 2 months without cleaning or pressing them. He will wear a white shirt for 3 and 4 days. He buys the cheapest socks, underwear, shoes and clothing because they get to looking shabby faster. If I don't patch and mend he goes around with holes! Now, what would you do with a problem like mine?

HIS WIFE

DEAR WIFE: I'd throw a butterfly net over him. And fast. Next thing you know he might think it would be nice if people felt sorry for him because he "lost" his wife. And then he might think up ways to "lose" her.

DEAR ABBY: Our son wanted to enlist in the navy, so he went down for his physical and he didn't pass it. He felt so ashamed and hurt because all his buddies made it, and he didn't. He's not going to college, so he feels sort of all alone and blue.

The problem is the people around here. They are very inquisitive. Someone is always asking him how come he's not in service. He's ashamed to tell them he couldn't pass the physical. Is there something else he can say when he's asked?

HIS MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: He should tell them the truth. There are many reasons why a young man can be "4-F," ranging all the way from a heart murmur he didn't know he had, to a bum knee suffered in a football game.

If you son is letting something like that bother him, he has a battle at home he'd better start working on.

DEAR ABBY I am employed as a secretary in a large office, one of the senior partners is semi-retired and comes in only a few days a week for 2 or 3 hours.

Last winter he came in just before noon and asked me to type a letter for him, which I gladly did. Then out of the blue, he asked me to have lunch with him. I was surprised because none of the bosses has ever taken any of us girls to lunch. I accepted.

I don't know what I did to charm this man, but he certainly seemed to enjoy my company. Don't misunderstand me, he didn't make any out-of-the-way advances to me, he just told me about his early life, which I found fascinating. I am 29, unmarried, and he is over 65, with an invalid wife. My problem: He invites me to lunch frequently now. But he leaves envelopes with $50 and $100 bills enclosed for "extras."

Now, I know it's no financial strain on him as he is very wealthy, but I am adequately paid for any work I do at the office, and I feel guilty accepting this money. Am I taking advantage of an elderly man by accepting his gifts and giving him nothing but a smile and a pleasant lunch hour by just listening?

WONDERING DEAR WONDERING: As long as he asks nothing, and you promise nothing, you have no reason to feel guilty. (P. S. But don't accept any more money, just in case.)

Officials Discuss Land, Water Fund Distribution

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Representatives from the Ohio Department of Natural Resources told officials of Ohio's political subdivisions today how federal land and water conservation funds will be distributed.

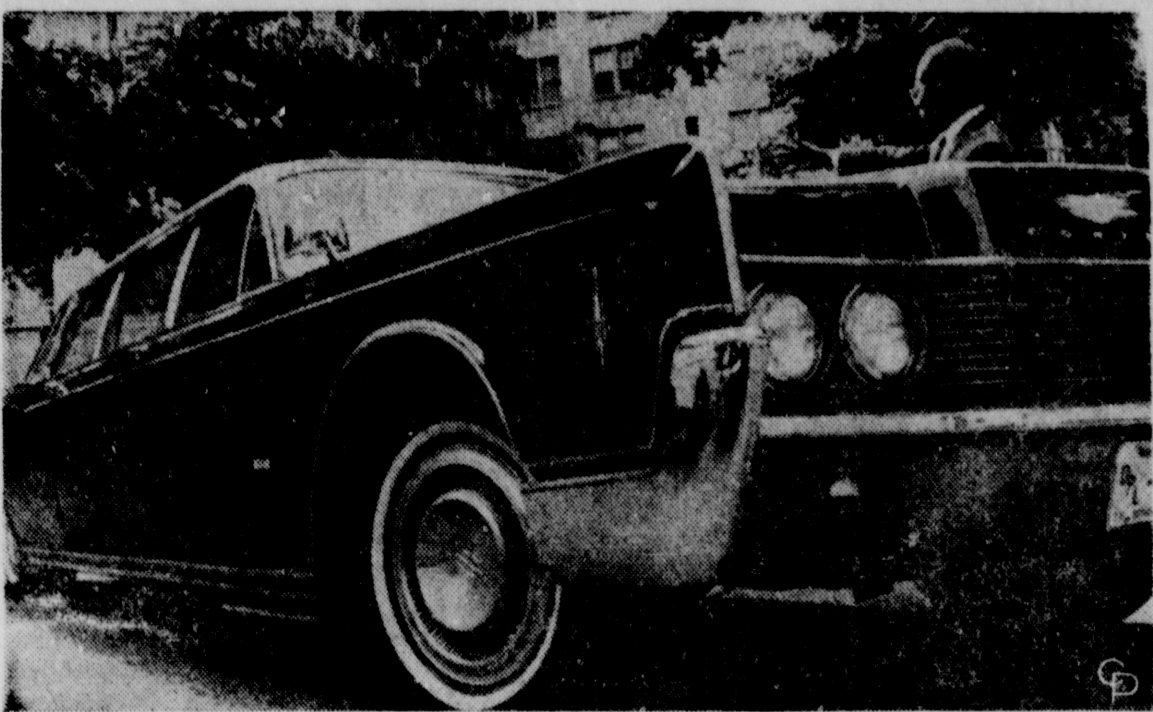

The officials, representing more than 2,000 cities, counties, villages and townships, were told of criteria which must be met by local projects seeking funds.

A conservation fund act, passed by Congress in 1965, allocated more than $5 million for state projects during the first two years. Under the act, local subdivisions are to begin receiving a percentage of the money this year.

The Ohio Recreation and Resources Commission recommended that local subdivisions get 40 per cent of this year's $2.2 million appropriation.

8 Kiwanians Set for State Tournament

The Circleville Kiwanis Club will be represented by two foursomes in the annual State Kiwanis Golf tournament at Granville Country Club Wednesday.

Making the trip to Granville will be Virgil Cress, Frank Wantz, Paul Sarchet, Forrest Croman, Clark Martin, Dave Gillespie, Joe Bell and Dwight Steele.

Gillespie is the "defending club champ" according to Kiwanis Golf chairman Dwight Steele. Gillespie was the lone Circleville golfer to win a trophy in the handicap tournament last year.

This year marks the eighth time the tournament has been at Granville. The course is deceptively tough because of the sloping fairways according to Steele.

There will be over 500 golfers from all over the state participating in the tournament.

Errors Plague BR All-Stars

Blane and Bigam combined on the Monroe mound, walking five, fanning eight and allowing 10 hits.

Next game for the Babe Ruth All-Stars is tonight at Ted Lewis Park. Pony League All-Stars provide the competition. Game time is 5:30 p.m.

8 Kiwanians Set for State Tournament

The Circleville Kiwanis Club will be represented by two four-somes in the annual State Kiwanis Golf tournament at Granville Country Club Wednesday.

Making the trip to Granville will be Virgil Cress, Frank Wantz, Paul Sarchet, Forrest Croman, Clark Martin, Dave Gillespie, Joe Bell and Dwight Steele.

Gillespie is the "defending club champ" according to Kiwanis Golf chairman Dwight Steele. Gillespie was the lone Circleville golfer to win a trophy in the handicap tournament last year.

This year marks the eighth time the tournament has been at Granville. The course is deceptively tough because of the sloping fairways according to Steele.

There will be over 500 golfers from all over the state participating in the tournament.

Cardinals Defeat Cubs, 6-5

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The New York Mets finally had their night, but for the St. Louis Cardinals, it looks more and more like their year.

The rollicking Red Birds, flying along with a 9½ game National League lead on the wing, reached their largest bulge of the season the hard way Monday night, scoring three in the last of the ninth to beat the Chicago Cubs 6-5.

It's been going that way all year for the Cardinals, who haven't been out of the top spot since June 17. But the Mets haven't had a night like Monday's since the Fourth of July fireworks they lit under Juan Marichal.

This time, the Mets finally set off the long-burning fuse under Larry Jackson as they clipped the wings of the Philadelphia right-hander 8-3 for the first time in their history after 18 losses.

In the only other NL games, Mike McCormick won his 18th game, stopping Atlanta on seven hits as San Francisco won 6-2, and Willie Stargell's run-scoring single in a three-run eighth carried Pittsburgh by Cincinnati 4-3.

In the only American League games, the New York Yankees slipped past Baltimore 5-4 and Minnesota halted California 2-1.

Once again, it was Roger Maris, the Yankee castoff, who sent the Cardinals soaring with an assist from Cubs' right fielder Ted Savage, an ex-Cardinal.

Maris, who tripled home two earlier runs and scored a third, singled in the tying run with one out in the ninth and the winning marker scored when Savage fumbled the hit.

Savage had been a hero until then after he capped Chicago's three-run fifth inning with a run-scoring safety. Ron Santo's 26th homer leading off the ninth made it 5-3 Cubs and they looked a good bet to replace Atlanta in second place and cut the Cardinals' lead to eight games.

But a walk and hits by Lou Brock and Curt Flood set up Maris, who finished the game hitting .275 with 43 runs batted in.

Jack Fisher, who ruined Marichal's 19-0 record against the Mets on July 4, again proved the stopper as he broke Jackson's spell with his third victory—and third by the Mets—over the Phillies this year.

"This is the night," Fisher's teammates told him before the historical night and a couple of Philadelphia errors in a four-run fourth inning helped make it so.

QUESTIONS

1—The San Francisco 49ers were once in the All-America Football Conference. True or false?

2—Lon Groza's career started before some of the present Browns were born. True or false?

3—Has Arnie Palmer won all of the big tournaments?

ANSWERS

ONE of the legendary players in pro football history, he was a smashing fullback for the New York Giants. He also did a good job with the place kicking duties.

"I knew the law of averages would catch up with Jackson sometime," Fisher said. "He wasn't pitching bad, but his defense let him down."

Fisher scattered eight hits for his eighth victory in 21 decisions as the Mets reached their longest winning streak of the season, five.

McCormick's performance was not as eventful as Fisher's, but it did tie him for the major league lead in games won.

The Giants' left-hander, who has lost five times, yielded only seven hits and had the Braves blanked until Clete Boyer hit his 21st homer with a man on in the ninth.

But it wasn't enough to overcome a three-run shot by Willie McCovey in the fourth and his sacrifice fly in a three-run third as San Francisco ended its own three-game losing streak and shattered the Braves' five-game winning string.

Stargell's second run-scoring hit of the game came off reliever Billy McCool and pinned Cincinnati's loss on Gary Nolan, who had a 3-1 lead and a three-hitter entering the inning.

The first run scored during a rundown and Matty Alou singled in the second.

Bob Veale, 13-5, got the victory for his three-hit work in eight innings.

Cincinnati Reds Nudged By Pittsburgh Pirates, 4-3

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP) — Cincinnati, utilizing four stolen bases and three Pittsburgh Pirates errors, appeared to be headed for victory behind the three-hit pitching of Gary Nolan until the bottom of the eighth.

ed up his 13th triumph of the year against only five losses.

Lee May singled in Cincinnati's first run in the first inning after Pinson had singled and stole second. Two errors by Andre Rodgers and a sacrifice fly by Tony Perez gave the Reds another run in the sixth. Tommy Harper stole home on a double steal in the seventh.

250 Golfers Pay Homage To 'The Haig'

TRAVERSE CITY, Mich. (AP) — "You're only here for a short visit. Don't hurry. Don't worry. And be sure to smell the flowers along the way."

Exactly when golfing great Walter Hagen made that statement is lost in the mists of time.

But to Hagen, now 75 and muted by three operations for throat cancer, the flowers probably never smelled sweeter than Monday night.

Some 250 people, including Arnold Palmer and former Masters and U.S. Open champion Cary Middlecoff turned this remote, northern lower Michigan resort into the golf capital of the world, attending a testimonial dinner for "The Haig."

And despite the fact that Hagen, father of modern professional golf and only man ever to win five PGA titles and four British Opens, could not amuse them with the antics and tales that made him as famous off the links as on, he obviously enjoyed himself.

A good bit of the praise for Hagen, who has lived in this area for some 10 years, was good natured ribbing that concentrated not so much on how he became the first man in history to win 11 million swinging a club, but how he spent it.

Hagen, besides being the only man to ever to win five PGA titles, is also the only one ever to have won four of them in a row. He quit playing competitive golf in 1939 and stopped playing social golf in 1945.

The schedule includes eight games with the league-leading Minnesota Twins, seven each with Chicago and California and four apiece against Detroit, Boston and Washington.

So far, the Indians have a 7-3 record against the Twins, with a 9-5 mark against Washington and a 7-7 split with Detroit. The Tribe has come out on the short end of the stick against Chicago (3-8), California (2-9) and Boston (3-11).

Steve Hargan will pitch Wednesday followed by Luis Tiant on Thursday. Then it's on to Detroit for the weekend.

Indians Could Have Influence On Who's First

WASHINGTON (AP)—Chances are the Cleveland Indians won't win the American League pennant. But they might have something to say about who does.

Between now and Oct. 1, the Tribe plays 34 of its 45 games against the top six clubs. They begin tonight in Washington with Stan Williams going against Barry Moore of the Senators.

Shaken Survivors Tell Of Grizzly Bear Attack

WEST GLACIER, Mont. (AP) — Four terror-stricken young people who saw one of their friends killed by a grizzly bear in a Glacier National Park say they tried everything they knew to drive away the marauding animal.

They built a bonfire, but it didn't scare the bear. They lay motionless in their sleeping bags, but the bear attacked anyway.

One youth even punched the bear with his fist, he said, but the grizzly kept coming.

Paul R. Dunn, 16, a high school junior from Edina, Minn., screamed: "He's got her in the sleeping bag and he's dragging her up the hill!"

The students, who had come to the scenic park for a working vacation, told their story Monday after escaping from the maddened bear, which threatened them for hours before finally attacking and killing Michele Koons, 19, of San Diego, Calif., early Sunday.

Twenty miles from the campsite where Michele died, another 19-year-old girl, Julie Helgeson of Albert Lea, Minn., was killed in her sleeping bag by another park bear during the same night. One of her companions, Roy Ducat, 18, of Perryburg, Ohio, was seriously injured.

A hunt continued today for the killer bears after park rangers shot and killed two grizzlies Monday in the area where Miss Helgeson was slain. Tests were being made on those bears to try to determine whether one was the killer.

With Dunn and Miss Koons were Denise Huckle, 19, of Sam Manuel, Calif., and a junior at the University of Arizona and Ronald A. Noseck, 21, and his brother, Ray T. 23, both of Oracle, Ariz. The Nosecks are dental students at the University of Louisville.

Saturday they had hiked to Trout Lake in a wild area in the western part of the park for a campout.

Two campers they met on the trail told of being chased up a tree by a grizzly.

They pitched camp and caught some fish. Then while cooking hot dogs, the wind blew their campsite smoke into the trees and Michele said, "There's a bear."

The bear invaded the camp and the four ran 50 yards down the lakefront. It ate their food and left with Michel's travel bag in its teeth.

"We discussed whether to stay where we were or try to go back," Dunn said. "It was dark and we weren't sure of the trail, so we built a big bonfire."

They saw the bear again standing on a logjam in the lake.

"None of us really slept," Ray Noseck said. "We just kept putting wood on the fire."

"About two o'clock my little dog, Squirt, started growling and I heard something in the water," Denise Huckle said. "I knew there was a bear near us."

"We stayed real close to the fire," Dunn said. "My feet really got hot."

"A couple of times the bear came very close to the fire," Dunn said. They got in their sleeping bags and covered their heads with blankets.

Between 2 a.m. and 4:30 a.m., the bear stayed at the edge of the area lit by the campfire, moving about in the brush.

"When the attack started, I was the first to see the bear," Miss Huckle said. "Squirt started to squeal. I looked over a log and the bear was loping straight toward the camp. The fire was big and I could see his face and the upper half of his body. Then about four or five feet from me, he stopped."

"By that time I was back under the covers," she said. "All of a sudden he grabbed one of the packs and we could hear him ripping the pack. Then he stopped and I could hear him breathing. I kept Squirt very quiet."

"Then he came toward me," Dunn said. "I could hear him come. I remained perfectly still and he just sniffed. It was kind of hard because I could hear him right above me, breathing. Then I heard a crunch into my sleeping bag. He bit half my shirt right off. I lifted up the covers and hit him. He reared back on his hind legs. I climbed a tree 30 feet high in 10 seconds. I saw the bear turn toward Ron."

"I yelled to Denis that we had to get out of there," Ron said.

"No, I can't," she replied. "I've got to undo the collar around Squirt's neck." The dog was tied in the sleeping bag with her.

"I kept watching," Ron said, "and the bear took several steps back and started for Michele. Denise and I jumped out of our bags and ran 50 yards down the beach."

"Ron shoved me up a tree," Denise said, "and tried to throw the dog up. I finally caught him."

Paul Dunn, who was in the tree, said: "All of a sudden Michele yelled, 'He's ripping my arm.' By that time, Ray had run down the beach but Michele couldn't get out of her bag. I heard something being dragged down the beach and I realized the bear had the sleeping bag."

"I said 'Michele, get out of your bag, run, climb a tree,' he said, 'I can't, he's got me.'"

"Then she screamed, 'Oh my God, I'm dead!'"

Stuebenville Police Chief Is Suspended

STUEBENVILLE, Ohio (AP) — Stuebenville Mayor Andrew W. Miller suspended Police Chief Robert C. Cornelius Monday "for failing to eliminate gambling and other illegal activities from the city." The suspension is for 90 days.

Miller, in a letter to the chief, said that Cornelius failed to follow specific instructions from the mayor, who is conducting an intensive drive against gambling and vice, especially prostitution.

The mayor had ordered the chief to station men at locations of suspected gambling operations. He also ordered a special vice squad, but the chief soon dropped the squad.

Cornelius, 46, has been a policeman here since March 1, 1949, and has been chief since September 1961.

Cornelius declined to comment on the suspension.

Heresy Trials Outmoded, Says Episcopal Committee

NEW YORK (AP) — A special committee of the Episcopal Church says heresy trials are an anachronism—no longer a proper way to deal with issues confronting Christianity.

The committee says procedures for removal of a bishop should be made "extreme difficult" and it urges a "dramatic revision of canon law" toward that end. Heresy trials should be "a last resort," it says.

A report by the committee, made public Monday, also said: "Any risks the church may run by fostering a climate of genuine freedom are minor compared to the dangers it surely will encounter from any attempts at suppression, censorship or thought control."

The report was addressed to the Episcopal Church's presiding bishop, the Rt. Rev. John E. Hines.

Bishop Hines established the committee last January as a result of the controversy over Bishop James A. Pike and demands by some church leaders that he be tried on heresy charges for unconventional teachings. Bishop Pike, who has asked for a trial because he felt his name had been impugned, was one of the committee's advisors.

Bishop Pike is not mentioned in the committee report, which deals with the general issue of heresy.

Bishop Pike said Monday he had not seen the report, but that it appeared to be "a breath of fresh air." He said he will withdraw his request for a heresy trial if the report is approved by the church's triennial convention starting in Seattle Sept. 17.

TO THE EDITOR:

As an interested physician, who spends a fair amount of his time in the emergency room, I was overjoyed to find the following article today in one of your fellow-newspapers.

Unfortunately, it was tucked away in the middle of the paper, among some feature articles. You can no doubt guess what was on the front page. I am not personally acquainted with Mr. Haddon, but hope there are others like him around.

Director William Haddon Jr. of the National Highway Safety Agency is critical of high speed involved in the growing number of highway accidents. He said: "We would like to see cars built so that they cannot exceed a certain speed—say, 80 miles per hour." But he refused to say whether 1969 safety standards will include engine governors. He said also he will crack down on unsafe tires."

KEEPING IT IN THE FAMILY — The Curley family of Bridgeton, N.J., rates a picture in the Baseball Hall of Fame as the only baseball team ever made up solely of brothers. Four of the Curleys are still actively engaged in baseball. One of the nine, Warren, who played outfield, lives at 505 N. Pickaway St., and will celebrate his 65th birthday in a few months. The brothers are from left to right, back row, Tom, Bill, Joe, Warren and Bob. First row, left to right, Jim, Art, Mom and Dad Curley, Sam and Carl.

Medicare Application Reveals Baseball Fame

Members of the staff at the Social Security Administration District Office, Chillicothe, were surprised to learn that a recent enrollee for medicare rates a picture in the National Baseball Hall of Fame, Cooperstown, New York.

Warren A. Curley, 505 N. Pickaway St., achieved that distinction back in 1963 along with his eight brothers, when the Hall of Fame officials decided to add to their collection of baseball memorabilia a picture of a team that was composed of nine brothers — the Curleys of Bridgeton, New Jersey.

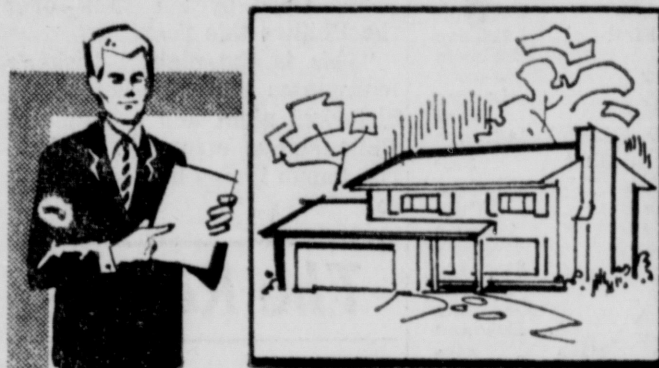

Warren Curley, now a sales service clerk at the Owens-Illinois Forest Products Division plant in Circleville, was one of the outfielders on this rare baseball combination which played semi-professionally during the 1930s.

Although still working, Curley went into the social security district office in Chillicothe to enroll for health insurance benefits three months before his 65th birthday in December.

The Social Security Administration recommends that all persons approaching age 65 enroll for medicare two or three months before their birthday in order to assure that they will be entitled to all possible benefits by the month they reach age 65.

It is not necessary that a person actually be retired in order to file the application necessary for health insurance benefits.

Shaken Survivors Tell Of Grizzly Bear Attack

WEST GLACIER, Mont. (AP) — Four terror-stricken young people who saw one of their friends killed by a grizzly bear in a Glacier National Park say they tried everything they knew to drive away the marauding animal.

They built a bonfire, but it didn't scare the bear.

They lay motionless in their sleeping bags, but the bear attacked anyway.

One youth even punched the bear with his fist, he said, but the grizzly kept coming.

Paul R. Dunn, 16, a high school junior from Edina, Minn., screamed: "He's got her in the sleeping bag and he's dragging her up the hill!"

The students, who had come to the scenic park for a working vacation, told their story Monday after escaping from the maddened bear, which threatened them for hours before finally attacking and killing Michele Koons, 19, of San Diego, Calif., early Sunday.

Twenty miles from the campsite where Michele died, another 19-year-old girl, Julie Helgeson of Albert Lea, Minn., was killed in her sleeping bag by another park bear during the same night. One of her companions, Roy Ducat, 18, of Perrysburg, Ohio, was seriously injured.

A hunt continued today for the killer bears after park rangers shot and killed two grizzlies Monday in the area where Miss Helgeson was slain. Tests were being made on those bears to try to determine whether one was the killer.

With Dunn and Miss Koons were Denise Huckle, 19, of Sam Manuel, Calif., and a junior at the University of Arizona and Ronald A. Noseck, 21, and his brother, Ray T. 23, both of Oracle, Ariz. The Nosecks are dental students at the University of Louisville.

Saturday they had hiked to Trout Lake in a wild area in the western part of the park for a campout.

Two campers they met on the trail told of being chased up a tree by a grizzly.

They pitched camp and caught some fish. Then while cooking hot dogs, the wind blew their campsite smoke into the trees and Michele said, "There's a bear."

The bear invaded the camp and the four ran 50 yards down the lakefront. It ate their food and left with Michele's travel bag in its teeth.

"We discussed whether to stay where we were or try to go back," Dunn said. "It was dark and we weren't sure of the trail, so we built a big bonfire."

They saw the bear again standing on a logjam in the lake.

"None of us really slept," Ray Noseck said. "We just kept putting wood on the fire."

"About two o'clock my little dog, Squirt, started growling and I heard something in the water," Denise Huckle said. "I knew there was a bear near us."

"We stayed real close to the fire," Dunn said. "My feet really got hot."

"A couple of times the bear came very close to the fire," Dunn said. They got in their sleeping bags and covered their heads with blankets.

Between 2 a.m. and 4:30 a.m., the bear stayed at the edge of the area lit by the campfire, moving about in the brush.

"When the attack started, I was the first to see the bear," Miss Huckle said. "Squirt started to squeal. I looked over a log and the bear was loping straight toward the camp. The fire was big and I could see his face and the upper half of his body. Then about four or five feet from me, he stopped."

"By that time I was back under the covers," she said. "All of a sudden he grabbed one of the packs and we could hear him ripping the pack. Then he stopped and I could hear him breathing. I kept Squirt very quiet."

"Then he came toward me," Dunn said. "I could hear him come. I remained perfectly still and he just sniffed. It was kind of hard because I could hear him right above me, breathing. Then I heard a crunch into my sleeping bag. He bit half my shirt right off. I lifted up the covers and hit him. He reared back on his hind legs. I climbed a tree 30 feet high in 10 seconds. I saw the bear turn toward Ron."

"I yelled to Denis that we had to get out of there," Ron said.

"No, I can't," she replied. "I've got to undo the collar around Squirt's neck." The dog was tied in the sleeping bag with her.

"I kept watching," Ron said, "and the bear took several steps back and started for Michele. Denise and I jumped out of our bags and ran 50 yards down the beach."

"Ron shoved me up a tree," Denise said, "and tried to throw the dog up. I finally caught him."

Paul Dunn, who was in the tree, said: "All of a sudden Michele yelled, 'He's ripping my arm.' By that time, Ray had run down the beach but Michele couldn't get out of her bag. I heard something being dragged down the beach and I realized the bear had the sleeping bag."

"I said 'Michele, get out of your bag, run, climb a tree,' he said, 'I can't, he's got me.'"

"Then she screamed, 'Oh my God, I'm dead!'"
